

Mobile phone GPS is really useful on social networks in several ways. First allows you to check in at venues like parks, stores, or cafes so your buddies know where you are. This simplifies organizing or meeting for exciting events. Second, GPS enables you to find nearby popular locations and local activities. It can let you know where cool hangouts or community events are taking place, so enhancing your experience exploring new locations with pals. Third, letting reliable friends know where you live gives you another degree of protection. Someone always knows where you are, so your trips are safer and more fun whether you ever feel lost or need assistance.